The Banks-Double Interest.

We have pursued the even tenor of our own way in dealing with the platforms of the various factions or parties into which the people are now divided. Some of these parties are doomed to an early death. Others of them will survive longer, but unless founded upon the rock of truth, will in the end be forced to yield to circumstances too powerful to be controlled by "The eternal years of God" are

We have no wish to antagonize any such party as the Albances, State, national and county, constitute. We examine its creed with respect, and whilst we praise where we can we censure only where we must. must be liberal in treating with a party made up of the bone and sinew of the land. We, the Democrats of Virginia, must be content to contemplate the possibility that we are fallible ourselves, and so prepare ourselves to weigh well all the arguments which can be adduced in favor of the teachings of our Alliance brethren. who are our natural allies, and whose help we shall be compelled to ask, not only in the presidential and congressional elections of next year, but in the legislative elections of this year.

So much by way of introduction to a few comments which we teel called upon to make upon an article that appeared in the last issue of the Charleston (W. Va.) Farmers' Advocate. The article alluded to is amusing if not instructive. It quotes from us the statement that the Government would have to pay exactly the same amount of interest upon its bonds that it does pay if there were not a national bank in existence, and then adds:
"The Disparce don't seem to be very well up in the national banking system. Every one who lays the slightest claim to intelligence upon the economic questions of the day knows the fallacy of the above proposition. The banks draw interest upon the bonds, and besides have 90 per cent. or $90 out of every $100 issued to them in currency to lend the people, based upon the very bonds which constitute their security. If this is not double interest what is?"

Our statement is literally true; and the man who does not know it to be true ought not to undertake to discuss financial or economic questions. The Government would have to pay interest upon exactly as much debt after the destruction of the present banking system as it now pays. We need not argue this proposition. Now as to double interest. Let us see how that is. The bonds deposited in Washington are deposited not in the interest of the banker or capitalist, but in order to secure a good currency for the peo-ple and save the note-holders from the possibility of loss. The bank would rather issue its notes without furnishing any security for their redemption, but UNCLESAM, looking to the welfare of his family, refuses to allow any Treasury notes to be put into circulation until the bank has deposited in his pocket (the Treasury) bonds enough to make those notes good from one end of the Union to the other. The Government does not issue Treasury notes to the banks, or rather the notes is sued to the banks are issued to them because Unole Sam is afraid his people might be the losers if the bank were empowered to issue the notes itself. He sees to it that not too many notes are put out. He does this by keeping the bonds in his pocket and counting out to each bank all the notes that it will be allowed to issue. All this, it will be seen, is done in behalf of the public and not in behalf of the banks. This will appear clearly if we suppos that the present banking system were abolished. Would the banks or any other bondholders lose their interest because the banks were closed? Certainly not. As we have repeatedly said, the Government would have to pay annually exactly the same amount of interest it now pays. Where, then, would be the double interest? Why it would be just where it is now-nowhere. It is true a bank or a man owning $100,000 of Government bonds could not get from the Government notes to use in his business or to lend out, but he could deposit his bonds with a banker or capitalist and borrow upon them 90 per cent. of their face value, just as he now deposits his bonds with UNCLE SAM, and borrows upon them 90 per cent. of their face value, of their face value, is the could deposit his bonds with UNCLE SAM, and borrows upon them 90 per cent. of their face value. So that the upshot of the lake and proceeded to the view.

CADETS ON THE SEASHORE.

For several days Captain W. F. Carne and an advance guard of the cadets of St. John's Military Academy of Alexandria have been at Cean ments for a week's encampment there of the battalion of two companies. The battalion arrived here this morning on the steamer Lady of the Lake and proceeded to the View.

The venerable James K. Walke, a collector on the ferry, died this morning at his residence, in Berkley. borrows upon them 90 per cent. of their face value. So that the upshot of the matter would be that the note-holders would no longer be able to call upon the United States to become responsible for the redemption of the outstanding notes. The issuer of the notes would not be our Government, but "heartless" bankers and other capitalists. Who would be benefited by this substitution of moneyed men for UNCLE SAM? Who would gain anything by it? Would the United States Government? Not a dollar. Would the note-holders? Not one of them. Would it be any easier to borrow money. Not one whit. The whole fabric is built upon the sand, and would topple to its fall at the first attack made upon it by the money-changers.

And where, we ask again, would be the double interest? The capitalist would as now invest his $100,000 in Government bonds and draw interest upon them, and would also, or could if he chose, hypothecate those bonds with a bank, banker, or capitalist, and borrow 90 per cent. of their face value, just as he now hypothecates them with Uncle Sam and draws 90 per cent, of their face value; but nobody would call this drawing double interest. Yet it surely would be drawing double interest if the banks draw double interest

The proposition to issue Treasury notes (greenbacks) "directly to the people" is of the same nature as the propositions we have just been considering. It is a simple delusion. It has no merit in itself. It is a mere form of words having no real mean-ing. All United States Treasury notes are now issued directly to the people, or else there is no possibility of issuing them in that manner. What is meant by the phrase "directly to the people?" Nothing. When the Government issues its notes it issues them "directly" to its creditors—not elsehow. Would you have the Government give away its notes? Oh, no. It must pay them out to its creditors-to keep the Government going. That is just what it does now. Will the impocunious masses receive any of these notes "directly" from Uncar Sam? Nay. verily. He will take care that these notes go into the pockets of those persons only who have pecuniary claims against him. Treasury notes will not be any more abunissued directly to the people in any sense in which they are not now issued directly to the people. The people to whom they will be issued "directly" already receive them directly; from Uncle Sam's hands. That is to say, UNCLE SAM issues' his Treasury notes not to the persons who most need them but to persons whom he owes in some way or other. Be sure he will give none of them away. Until he

'directly to the people." Secrecy and the Debt. The Norfolk Landmark from time to time insists that the Debt Commission should make known to the public what is the purport of the settlement proposed by the OLCOTT Committee. The DISPATCH, too, would like to have the exact figures, but we have cheerfully deferred to the wisdom of the commission in withholding this information. "It was the request of both sides." It was well Laymon's Ut

BATURDAYJUNE 13, 1891. was well-nigh absurd. It could have emanated nowhere but in London. It could have had origin with no set of men who are at all informed as to our resources, for it contemplated putting aside to the credit of the interest account a sum several hundred thousand dollars in excess of our net

But we forbear. The representations o the New York gentlemen who visited Richmond may induce the London holders of our honds to see matters in their true light if they make such an attempt (and no doubt they will) and fail, so much the worse for the bondholders.

No Compromise. We are glad to know that, as was stated in our issue of yesterday, the congressional Free-Coinage Committee will consent to no mise on the question of opening the United States mints to silver upon the same terms upon which they are opened to gold. The DISPATCH claims to have been the first paper in the United States to take the ground that to buy silver for coinage was to discredit that metal, no matter how much of it was "thus purchased. We are confident that the next House of Repre sentatives will take this position and will legislate accordingly. It may possibly be unwise to make the coinage of silver free We cannot know certainly whether it will be so or not until we have tried the experiment. But there cannot be any doubt that it is injurious to the reputation of silver as one of the precious metals to fix a price upon it less than the price of gold

Sunday's Dispatch. The DISPATCH to-morrow will be a tenpage paper, brimful of news and interesting specialties. The last chapter of the Master of Silence will be then published. The fascination of the story continues to the end. It is but one of the many readable features which the paper will present.

The Petersburg Index-Appeal yesterday resumed its old four-page form. It announces that this was done "not without reluctance, but in obedience to what seemed to be a popular demand so per-sistent and unanimous" that it did not feel warranted in disregarding it.

The Index-Appeal was sagacious in making the change "as an experiment." It has done its duty. All of its patrons will say this, and while we like to agree with our newspaper brethren whenever we can, we must affirm the popular verdict and say that the paper looks more like an old and tried friend in its four-page than in its sixpage form.

The Washington Post, upon rather small provocation, it would seem, denounced General Bradler T. Johnson's Fredericks-burg oration as a villification of those who fought the war for the Union and declares that the General "is a relic of a day that is past." It insists that he should know better than to pose at this late period as an irritant and disturber of the broader new, and generous life that, effacing all sections and all antagonisms, has come to the whole nation,"

PROBABLY DEVOURED BY SHARKS. Fate of the Colored Cook of the Schooner Silver Queen-Inspection by the Board. [Special telegram to the Dispatch.]

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.]

Nonpoles, Va., June 12,—Yesterday the colored cook John Howard, of the schooner Silver Queen, with others of the crew, while near the mouth of the bay saw a school of sharks following close after the vessel. An improvised net was made and endeavors began to capture one of the monsters. During the excitement Howard by some means became entangled in the meshes of the net and fell over the vessel's side. It is supposed that the suction caused by the vessel's speed drew him immediately under, as the man was seen no more, and is supposed to have become a victim to the sharks hunger. A small school of sharks was recently reported in Hampton Roads.

THE GEORGIA CENTRAL GOBBLE. Trouble in Savannah Over the Absorption

Trouble in Savannah Over the Absorption by the Richmond and Danville.

The people of Savannah, Gs., says the New York World, have almost risen up in open rebellion against the Richmond and Danville system, growing out of the absorption of the Central railroad of Georgia, which means, it is believed, a removal of the general offices from that city. The action of the Richmond and Danville in giving its officers jurisdiction over the Central's affairs and relegating the officers of that line to subordinate positions sunder the consolidation has caused almost as much excitement in Savannah and the castern part of the State as was occasioned when Fort Sumter was fired upon. Jay Gould, John H. Inman, General Thomas, and Senator Brice would hardly receive the cordial welcome extended them last February were they to appear there now. From the state of excitement prevailing there it is reasonable to believe they would be stoned. These magnates are held responsible for the change. General E. P. Alexander, president of the Central, who is to be dethroned, is being severely criticised, the citizens alleging that he could have prevented the sale and consolidation had he tried. It is believed that the general offices of the Richmond and Danville, which are now located at Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va., will be removed to Atlanta. Ceoil Gabett, iate general manager of the Central, who was tendered the general superintendency under the new order, has declined to stay with the road at all. by the Richmond and Danville.
